

Sarita Ibnoe

This series depicts the moments in life of the artist that are now realized to be the beginning of something. Not something tangible, but more like a feeling or environment like solitude. Each frame symbolizes pretty much that.

This second and third piece of the series are specifically about the moment of turning inwards. Remembering, accepting and forgiving the past in order to stay in the present. Made with the process of weaving as well as a other method the artists have used throughout her artistic journey.
