

Savita
Ibnoe

Sarita Ibnoe (b. 1989), raised in Jakarta and Kuala Lumpur, is a multidisciplinary artist with a traveller's soul. After completing her BA in Illustration from Middlesex University, London, she began her artistic career as a graphic designer and an illustrator and later found mixed media as well as weaving. Weaving is now her main activity as she creates wearable products as well as artworks.

Her approaches in the art are focused on the rebuilding of memories, placing moments of her life under microscopic lenses as well as connecting little pieces of her life together while placing the lives of others in line with hers. As an artist who is constantly trying to connect the dots, Sarita found the joy of being in journeys and being in-between places. For her, the medium weaving represents the mindful action of a journey; going in and out, back and forth.

She uses various mediums and materials in her creation and relying on what she already has including the body, nature and waste. Sarita has been exploring weaving for the last six years and with weaving, she combines it with other things resulting in performative and participatory artwork.

PORTFOLIO

Particles of Beginning 01, 2023

Mix Media on Canvas
80 x 130 cm

This series depicts the moments in life of the artist that are now realised to be the beginning of something. Not something tangible, but more like a feeling or environment like solitude. Each frame symbolises pretty much that. The representation of canang comes from the most recent one that happened since moving to Bali, the braids inspired by a door decoration in buildings in Tibet back in 2008 and other moments that are recorded by drawings.

Some of these are then magnified into a bigger piece of artworks. Zooming in to the moments is an action of trying to remember them deeper with the intention to keep the memory.

Inner Layers - Not Home

(part of a series in progress), 2020

Woven cotton yarns on an old painting on canvas

50 x 50 cm

This Inner Layers series is an exploration of some inner child traumas that have not healed and buried in layers of memories through the years until now. In this series I am using some paintings from my childhood/younger times and weave a few layers over it. Inner Layers – Not Home is about me as a child in a family that moves quite a bit--- houses and/or countries. Happened at the beginning of my teenage life that made some memories overlapped.

Daily Weavings: Pandemic, 2020
any yarn I can find at home

During this pandemic, I decided to weave one small weaving each day. This is a trying times and also uncertain, so I don't really know how long I will do this but weaving this everyday gives me a sense of calmness for a few minutes.

Daily Weavings: Penang, 2019

Mix media

During my stay in Penang for six weeks, I decided to do one weaving everyday as a recording for that particular day.

While exploring the city, I also took some small things i found during the day and weave them into a piece.

Entwined: An Updated Story

A Solo Exhibition

Entwined: An Updated Story is a series of painted and woven works that revolve around the transition of the self. It is a re-adaptation of a body of work titled Close, which she created alongside photographers Sally Ann and Emily May as well as writer Mahadi Asman in 2013. This collaborative project told the story of an individual who ‘closes’ the door on others in order to become ‘closer’ to herself.

Sarita undertakes a symbolic process of reflection by weaving fresh narratives over the paintings and illustrations in Close. Showcasing a significant shift in her practice towards weaving, Entwined directs viewers to focus on the exigencies of self-transformation and how isolation during the pandemic has motivated people to look within.

Weaving About Going and Coming Back (on going)

Peformative weaving

During my stay in Penang as an artist in residence, I have encountered many memorable experiences and met people that go passing borders, many times, in their life. To travel, to live, to work, etc. which is similar to what I'm doing for the past 3-4 years right before the pandemic. This weaving on the window is inspired by that.

I intend to keep doing this in various objects that separate two spaces such as door, window, etc

This is the very beginning of a series. I use the essence of weaving. A meditative, repetitive action of going in and out, back and forth

Tenun Teduh, 2019

Performative weaving installation

This work is made for Smart Illumination Yokohama 2019.

An Annual event by the city of Yokohama where a few interactive installations are exhibited in a public space, Zou no hana Park.

Tenun Teduh is about how I see that Indonesians and Japanese have this similarities that we are at some point experience the condition of coping with the effect of a specific natural disaster such as tsunami and earthquake. This installation is made as a celebration of the spirit of rebuilding a home or a safe place that is build together.

Some found materials from Indonesia and Japan (like trash, receipt, past travel documents) are used to create memory and merge these two places into one.

Bertemu di Tengah, 2015 - now

(on going project)

Since about two years ago, everytime anyone that I know goes out of town or goes on a trip, I ask them to bring back for me a bottle of soil or sand or pebbles from that particular place.

At the moment, it is as simple as collecting some soil from everywhere around the world. I think it is a symbol of anyone's home.

translated title: See you in the middle.

Mengiras; Membenahi, 2017

Peformative drawing & installation

28 drawings, 60 x 150 cm, 800 x 330 cm room installation

Mengiras; Membenahi is a performance and installation work by Sarita Ibnoe's based on her self-reflection on how in the self-improvement cycle, it is important to be aware of changes happening and the realization that nothing is permanent. While waiting for the end of time, we need to keep improving, to keep reflecting ourselves, fixing things again and so on. But over time, there is the possibility that the opportunity to return to that cycle of life, and that it will become smaller until the day where everything ends.

A Noble Silence, 2015

Dearest, Ibnoes Couple, 2014

Mix Media Installation

There's always hope to mend mistakes, do better than before and preserve something intact. This work is a mixed manifestation of those wishes: a reconstruction of a wall at the late grandparents' house, a pair of chair they left, and a picture of a faceless spouse, an open possibility of the artist's future family.

A collaboration work with Annie Gobel,
a Melbourne based Indonesian jewellery artist.
